LAKE ST. ANN FISH.
Malcolm McKinlay, fishery guardian, returned from Lake St. Ann on Tuesday. He has kindly given the BULLETIN the following as to his trip:
I arrived at White Whale lake on the 21st, and at Lake St. Ann on the 22nd October. The fish in each lake were spawning. About the 2nd of Nov. the fish gradually moved out into deep water. It is very desirable to use every vigilance to prevent fishing during spawning, as abundance of fish in those lakes is an incalculable wealth to the country. The settlers around these lakes are chiefly Metis, and Indians who depend wholly on fishing and hunting for a livelihood, and in case any of those pursuits fail the results can readily be conjectured. Consequently on some judgment to grant the privilege to fish this season with one net to a family. Ice formed around lakes on 4th, and on the 6th ice over so it was impossible to go on the lakes up to the 19th owing to a heavy fall of snow sagging ice, which caused water to overflow. 21st, Oct. '96.
The Toronto Globe recommends the consideration of building the Crow's Nest Pass railway to the boards of trade and the political, industrial and labor organizations throughout the country; as the question of reaching the mining country is of great importance, and it adds that means of building the railway should be given attention to so as to best secure low freight rates and facilitate trade and transportation and best promote the development of the mineral wealth of the west.
The St. James Budget of London England under the caption of "A Curious Allegation," publishes a letter from an American, who declares that the true inwardness of the defeat of Mr. Bryan was the use of money to turn the farmer vote of the central west. The writer states that the insurance companies owning mortgages on farms in Iowa, Indiana, Illinois and neighboring states directed their agents to see every farmer whose lands were mortgaged and to offer them if McKinley should be elected, a five years' extension of their mortgage at a low rate of interest. This plan succeeded and Mr. Bryan who otherwise would have been elected, was defeated. Continuing, the American says that the loss of interest to the companies will be great but that they expect to sell to a mass of depreciated securities on the boom from which London is benefitting.

A LA PUBLIQUE :

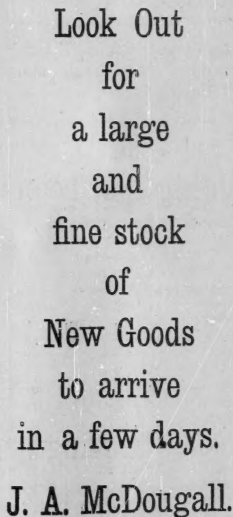

Seeking information as to the best mode of utilizing our gold-bearing gravels, I was during my recent visit to British Columbia, directed to Mr. Abbott, superintendent of the C. P. R. at Vancouver, who in search of similar information in regard to mining on the Fraser had procured the blue books on mining of the government of New Zealand for 1894 and 1895, and these, he was so good as to lend me for perusal. The reports are very voluminous and indicate that the government of New Zealand, which is one of the most advanced in the world to-day, has made the developing of its mineral wealth the first part of its immigration policy. Everything that the skill of mining experts and the money of the colony could do in the way of examining and making publicly known the gold fields, and in opening trails, in subsidizing prospectors, in rewarding finders of new gold fields, in constructing public water courses for sluicing purposes, in establishing schools of mines in mining districts, and in every other possible way assisting the industry, has been done. Canada, which is full of undeveloped and hardly drest of mineral resources, might well tread in the footsteps of her sister colony, and by the inauguration of a similar policy solve the problem of peopling her vast vacant lands. Annually sixty per cent of the gold output of New Zealand is taken from alluvial deposits by hydraulic sluicing and steam power river dredges, which are acknowledged by even Californian experts to have been brought to a higher state of efficiency in New Zealand than in any other country. Both of these methods are applicable to the vast deposits of auriferous gravel which underlie this country from the banks of the South Saskatchewan to those of the Liard river.

These are facts which cannot be gained. "It may not be generally known "however, that hydraulic mining is a "certain sure thing when ordinary skill "and care are used. No class of min- "ing is as sure of its regular dividends "if only the prospecting has been "thoroughly carried out. In this "branch of mining there is no vein that "may pinch out unexpectedly, an "event which not even the best ex- "pert can foresee, but there is a deposit "of gravel in which the veriest tyro "in mining can by sufficient and care- "ful testing estimate the amount of gold "he may ultimately secure." We have then, as compared with the normally in- accessible British Columbia of sea moun- tains of gold and silver, in Alberta a freely accessible plain of grazing and arable land capable of feeding a continent overlying inexhaustible quantities of, gold and coal, in the mining of which the elements of chance and cost can be reduced to a minimum. Under these circumstances it behoves the people of Alberta to unite with those who have already made representations to the Dominion government, urging the establishment of a department of mines similar to that of New Zealand. The geological survey of Canada, though doing valuable scientific work, does not teach practical people what they want to know; in fact its knowledge is buried in blue books of which few know the existence. In order to utilize the great latent resources with which this paper deals it appears necessary to request the government to accede to the following recommendations: 1st. The thorough examination by an expert from New Zealand of the bed and valley of the North Saskatchewan river by systematic boring and survey so as to ascertain the extent and value of the minerals therein. 2nd. The procuring of detailed plans of and full information regarding the best gold dredging and survey appliances in successful

It was with sorrow that we are called upon to chronicle the death of Nelson L. Standish, who passed away on Thursday Nov. 19th, at 5 o'clock p. m. at his residence, about 5 miles south of Lacombe, on which place he settled a little over three years ago, coming from Georgetown Ont. He was in his 47th, year and took an active part in temperance and church work, also any agricultural enterprise, having been president of the agricultural society. He was also originator of the Sunday school convention which now includes the whole of Alberta and is the means of doing much good. He held the office of president of the Band of Hope from the time of its organization until his death. A tumor at the base of the brain, first caused blindness and then death. Having consulted the most noted specialists in the Dominion, they told him there was no help for him and a post mortem examination held by Dr. H. J. Richardson, by Mr. Standish's request, showed them to be correct. He was fully prepared to meet death, but was unconscious for some days before it came. His remains were interred in Lacombe cemetery on Saturday 21st, inst. According to his wishes the funeral service was a union service the Rev. John Fernie and the Rev. E. J. Chevgin both taking part, he having been a member of the Baptist church. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn the loss of a loving husband and kind father.

Mrs. Geo. Jamieson returned from Ontario on Friday, where she has been spending some months with relatives and friends.

On account of the very heavy falls of snow there has no coal come in from the mines yet this season, but it is expected every day now.
